

KITCHEN UPGRADE

Underground classic

Introduced in 1933, the Coolicon shade is a British icon that has illuminated everything from factories and mills to the London Underground. Now this handcrafted, solid-steel task light, with its durable virtuous enamel finish and vented top, is available in two sizes from home-furnishing brand Loaf. Choose from 12 colours, including Powder Pink, Sky Blue, Latte Brown (shown), Fresh Teal and Deep Yellow. Coolicon the Original 1933 shade, from £125. loaf.com

Cabinet talks

Inspired by early 20th-century designs, the Ardingly cabinet by Neptune has been designed with flexibility in mind. Made from painted tulipwood with a darkened oak base and legs, it comes with adjustable shelves, in-door storage, and dimmable LED lighting. There is also the option of an exterior slatted lower shelf, plus interior Carrara marble surface and mirrored back. Measuring H165xW86xD40cm, it can be finished in any of Neptune's paint colours, including olive. Prices start from £1,635. neptune.com

Super surface

Elements Lava Stone is the latest offering from AluSplash, a manufacturer of aluminium-based splashbacks and wall panels. Featuring a dark matt finish, the seamless splashback is easy to install and fire-, steam- and water-resistant. A 900x600mm/900x800mm panel costs from £109. alusplash.com

Growing concern

Liga is a British brand that offers a wide range of products made from cork, a sustainable bark that regrows after being harvested. The Cork + Pottery Earthware collection is made in Portugal, and each item of tableware is easily dismantled so that the ceramic section can be popped in the dishwasher and the cork washed by hand. Available in Cream or Storm Grey, prices start from £9 for an espresso cup. loveliga.co.uk
